<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Communication, Environment, Science &amp; Health (CESH)</th>
<th>Communication And Technology (CAT)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| Intro Course: COMM 2850
Students focusing in CESH will investigate how communication influences public understanding of science, health, environmental, and risk-related issues. While exploring conceptual and theoretical issues, students will learn specific skills for communicating science, health, environmental, and risk information to a variety of audiences. Possible career paths include public information officer, science writer, environmental educator/outreach specialist, environmental or health-risk communicator, and business, legal and other graduate study. | Intro Course: COMM 2450
Students focusing in CAT explore the social and psychological dimensions of the design, use, and evaluation of communication and information technologies. Students explore the ways people relate to each other online, the uses of language in social media, the social practices and implications surrounding communication technologies, as well as, people’s interface and information needs. Possible career paths include social media director, online marketing strategist, research analyst, user interface designer, software designer, usability specialist, campaign specialist, network organizer, as well as business, legal and other graduate study. |

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Communication Media Studies (CMS)</th>
<th>Communication and Social Influence (CSI)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| Intro Course: COMM 2200
Students focusing in CMS will investigate the forces that shape media in contemporary society, investigating how what we see and hear comes to be. They will also analyze and understand the psychological, social, and cultural processes that are in turn affected by media, from politics to entertainment to news to the very question of what we understand as real about ourselves and our world. Students may pursue careers in the media industries, in designing the laws and policies regarding media, in business, legal or other graduate study, or in the service of making media better; most of all, they will be more informed and astute citizens in a highly mediated world. | Intro Course: COMM 2760
Students focusing in CSI will use communication principles to analyze issues and situations involving groups, organizations and selected audiences to design, implement, and evaluate appropriate communication programs. Courses stress the positive, ethical, and effective uses of communication in human affairs. This focus area would be appropriate for students interested in using communication to bring about change at the individual and societal level. Possible career paths include public relations, marketing communications, polling, human resources, governmental affairs, and business, legal and other graduate study. |

Communication Practica

Building on the core courses, the Communication Practica is a set of intensive courses focusing on understanding and producing oral, written, visual, and mediated messages that are effectively adapted to diverse audiences within multiple contexts.

Communication Major Course Policies

- COMM 4960 (Internship), 4980 (TA), & 2990 (research) will only count as overall elective credits.
- COMM 4940 (Special Topics) can be repeated for credit only when the topics are different.
- Up to 12 credits of coursework may be counted towards Cornell Communication major, if approved, from transfer coursework. Students may transfer communication credits that are course equivalencies; that is, courses which are taught in our department. Students may transfer one 3-credit communication practica course. Students may transfer in one 3-credit level elective that is communication-related, even if it is not necessarily equivalent.
- All COMM courses must be completed for a letter grade, and students must receive a passing grade.

Academic Support & Resources

Faculty Advisors and other academic support staff are an important source of support, advice, and information; however, students are ultimately responsible for their academic decisions, including course selection, meeting prerequisites, and adhering to policies, procedures, and deadlines. Students should track your degree progress through https://chatter.cornell.edu. CHATTER/DUST will provide the most up-to-date information regarding your progress in the CALS Distribution credits and total credits towards graduation.
